Among other things, Chicago is known for its many unique musical experiences... one of them is Christine Kent.

Once you hear her sing and join in that experience, you will not forget her.

Her guitar and voice have taken her throughout North America and Central America. She has played in Chicago, Atlanta's Hard Rock Cafe, benefits and festival events around Atlanta - and all over the Midwest.

This stellar solo artist 'accidentally' wound up at a Chicago suburban night spot and blew away every band on stage at a Battle of the Bands in June 2010. One girl with a guitar...

She can nail Janis with her voice but she can cover Johnny Cash, Journey or Judy Garland just as easily. And you will never forget her originals - the hooks, the lyric. The driving, emotion-filled guitar work. Words cannot describe the might and power of Christine's music and lyric. This prolific master of story in song will captivate you and take your heart and mind places they've never been before.

She is a singularity... but then, you'll soon find that out for yourself.
